of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, which occurs during the coming week, and will be marked by appropriate ceremonies, deserves a passing notice. The Public Ledger is in many ways one of the most remarkable and successful newspapers in America, and was first issued in 1886 It was started by three working printers, who gathered together all the money they had in the world, and found they had barely $5,000 to devote to the enterprise. It was an experiment. for they were without influential friends or support, and started their paper as a small shee for the poorer classes, to be sold for one cent a copy. Swain, Abell, and Simmons, the three printers, issued their first number from a small. their own type, working their own small hand sheet of four 9in. by 12in. pages to subscribers. It had a difficult road before it, as newspapers selling for one cent a copy were then new in America, and the system of cash payments for advertisements and subscriptions was also new, and a rigid adherence to it drove tired with a fortune estimated at $5,000,000. The new owner, Mr. George W. Childs, was a wealthy Philadelphian, who, like his predecessors, was also the architect of his own fortune He was born in Baltimore, in 1829, and coming to Philadelpia when I I years of age, began life the predominance of law over abitrariness should -although it has existed in this country for as a boy in a bookseller's shop. The chaff flies away into space, the grist often makes but a very small heap. We cannot expect to do all our business by talking over it, without running into the faults natural to that method. Some of our neighbours, who now and then do great strokes of policy, and effect immense changes by the silent-method, smile at the frequent unproductiveness of our long debates, and of comment might have avoided .- Timee.
